The first job skill: RCHS students practice interviewing

A panel of local businesspeople showed up at River City High School on March 11 to help prepare some of the school's seniors for the job market. Panelists staged mock job interviews with a number of the students, as the kids' peers looked on.

The goal was to help the kids get ready for the job market, and provide them with both interview practice and tips for the interviewing for a real job.

"I felt extremely nervous because I've never done this before," reported one student, Maurise Rodriguez.

Did she feel the practice interview would help her in the "real world"?

"Yes, (because) you get to see how it'll work in the real world," answered Rodriguez.

Panelists included Jeremy Springer of the Davis Energy Group, Mark Gini of Californiat State Teachers Retirement System, Monda Korich of The Eatery restaurant, Kyle Glanker of Kitchell Construction Management and Mike Costello of Brew It Up, along with West Sacramento mayor Christopher Cabaldon.

The second-annual round of mock interviews was organized by social studies teacher Ronica Carlisle.

Information for this article was provided by Ronica Carlisle and Katrina Bueno of River City High School.

Affordable housing project to break ground in West Sac's urban Bridge District

A nonprofit housing developer has announced groundbreaking for a 70-unit affordable housing project to open in the fall of 2014 in West Sacramento's Bridge District.

"The Rivermark" will go up at 959 Bridge Street (at 5th Street). The 188-acre Bridge District, near Raley Field, has been master-planned by the City of West Sacramento for a variety of urban uses, and the Rivermark will join "Ironworks" as a new housing project in the district.

The project is being developed by BRIDGE Housing (www.bridgehousing.com).

Groundbreaking at the site is scheduled for April 5.

Bridge Housing reports that the apartments "will be affordable to residents with annual incomes ranging from approximately $24,000 to $34,600 for a four-person houshold (30-50 percent of area median income)."

Rents will range from $370 to $925/month depending on income, household size and apartment size.

The project was designed by David Baker & Partners, and general contractor is Sunseri Construction, Inc.

The Rivermark is Bridge Housing's first venture in West Sacramento.

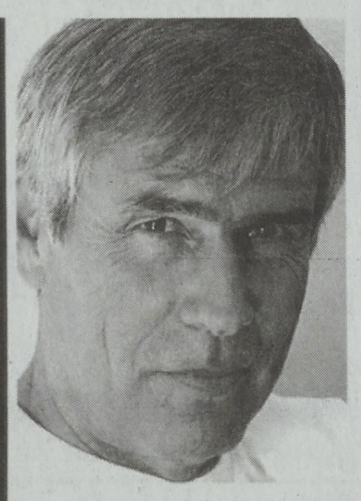
A battle of wits with colony of stinging insects



My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

I have always hated wasps!

When I was seven or eight years old, my mother had a clothesline out in the backyard and one sunny day, for some youthful reason long forgotten, I decided I would check out what was inside the fist-sized circular openings on both sides of the metal rod that made it possible for her to hang out her clothes to dry. So I shinnied my way up to one of the openings, stuck my left eye right up next to it to get the best possible look, and almost immediately spotted what looked like a huge bee racing towards me to protect what turned out to be its home. Before I knew it, I had been very painfully stung in the eye by what my mother told me must have been a wasp, and for the next week or so I could barely see out of that eye and looked like I had been in a losing fight with Muhammad Ali. Plus just a few weeks ago, when I was up on my roof trying to clean out one of my gutters, a whole gang of angry wasps chased me back onto my ladder and wouldn't stop dive-bombing me until I had completely given up the project. So wasps have always been my very least favorite pest, and that brings me to my little story.

Awhile back my youngest son, who lives in a one-room backyard addition I added to the house many years ago, came looking for me and said, "Something really strange is going on in my bedroom, Dad. You better come out and take a look."

"Do I have to do it right this minute?" I asked him, having just settled down in front of the television set to watch a sporting event.

"Yes," he said with emphasis. "There's a really weird noise coming from my ceiling, and it's getting louder all the time."

"What kind of noise is it?" I asked with interest.

"Well," he tried to explain, "it kind of sounds like a bowl of Rice Krispies right after you pour in the milk."

"What?" I asked with a smile. "You mean your ceiling is going `snap, crackle and pop'?"

"It's not funny," he assured me. "It's been going on for a week now and it's starting to drive me nuts."

"Okay," I said reluctantly, "but this better be good."

Once we were both inside my son's bedroom, he turned off the fan, his computer and everything else which made even the slightest noise, and we both began straining our ears to hear the `snap, crackle and pop' sound. "Can't you hear that?" he finally asked me after a minute or so.

"Sorry," I said, "but I don't hear a thing."

"You've got to be kidding," he said with disbelief. "That's the loudest it's ever been."

"My ears aren't what they used to be," I admitted.

"But you'd have to be deaf not to hear that!"

"Sorry," I said again as I patted him on the shoulder and hurried back to my TV.

The next day, while my son was at work, like I had promised him I would do, I went out into his room and listened again for the 'snap, crackle and pop' sound. Although I still couldn't hear it, I did happen to notice what appeared from a distance to be an uncommon number of bees buzzing around just outside his window. They seemed to be very busy coming in and going out of one of the little circular vent holes which had been left in the roof for attic air circulation.

"Well, I think I've found out what that noise is you've been complaining about," I informed my son when he got home from work.

"What is it?" he asked with excitement.

"Well," I explained, "I think there's a bee nest in the ceiling, and my guess is that it's right above the head of your bed."

"You've got to be kidding?" he said with alarm, having never been very fond of stinging insects.

"They're probably running around in there doing bee things and that's what you've been hearing."

"Well, what are you going to do about it?" he demanded to know.

"I'm not really sure," I admitted, having never run into the problem before.

"Can't we just kill them?"

"I don't want to kill a bunch of honey bees," I said. "They spend their whole day pollinating flowers and doing other good deeds."

"Are you talking about those bees that hang out by my window?" he asked.

"Those are the ones alright."

"You're not only deaf, Dad," said my son, slowly shaking his head, "but you're blind, too. Those aren't honey bees, those are wasps!"

Sure enough, on closer examination, my son was right, and we quickly began exploring deadly scenarios which might get rid of the problem once and for all. To begin with, I got up on a ladder (while my son hid behind a tree a good twenty yards away) and I sprayed the heck out of them with a product accurately called Kill Zone. Wasps immediately began dropping like flies, but by the next afternoon, a whole new crop of them were once again happily buzzing in and out of the little circular vent hole.

I sprayed the heck out of them with a product 'Kill Zone. ' Wasps immediately began dropping like flies, but by the next afternoon, a whole new crop of them were once again happily buzzing in and out of the little circular vent hole. . .

Next, I talked to a building contractor, who told me to call an exterminator or a professional bee keeper. I quickly discovered that those two options would cost an arm and a leg, and after giving the matter quite a bit of thought, I decided to try a cheaper, somewhat low-tech method of dealing with the problem.

"You did what?" asked my son in amazement.

"I stuck one of your tennis balls in the hole," I repeated again. "It fits perfectly."

"But that's not going to stop the noise!" he shouted. "That's just going to tick them off! And they're living right above my bed. What if they try to find a new way out and end up in my room some night when I'm asleep? They're going to be mad as hell!"

"Don't worry," I said. "The ones already inside will probably all be dead in a few days or weeks, and I'm sure the new ones trying to get in will give up after awhile and find a new place to call home."

"So that's it?" exclaimed my son in frustration. "You're just going to stick a tennis ball in the hole and figure that will solve the whole problem?"

"That's right."

"You know, don't you, Dad, that if this doesn't work, I just may have to move out and get my own apartment?"

"Promises, promises!"

River Cats are tired of seeing their name bungled

Front office vows $1 fine to support charity

With baseball season getting underway, the News-Ledger just received this missive from the front office of the Sacramento River Cats here in West Sacramento. No doubt, there's a degree of "tongue in cheek" going on here. The press release follows:

"You've been warned: the moniker 'River Cats' is comprised of two words, with a capital 'R' and a capital 'C.' Effective immediately, all members of the local and national media, River Cats corporate partners, full- or part-time River Cats staff, and season, flex, and mini-plan ticket holders will be fined $1 for spelling 'River Cats' incorrectly.

"All money collected will go to the River Cats Foundation, which has contributed more than $1.5 million in cash and $16.2 million in in-kind donations to the greater Sacramento community since 2000.

"The Sacramento River Cats franchise is one of the most well-known teams in professional baseball, in spite of the relative obscurity of river cats themselves (apologies to Dinger). However, even after 11 division championships, four PCL championships, and two Triple-A National Championships, the name is consistently misrepresented at the local and national level.

"For clarification, the following are incorrect iterations of the name 'River Cats,' and therefore subject to the $1 fine:

– Rivercats
– RiverCats
– rivercats
– river cats

" Twitter mentions, text messages, and handwritten notes are the lone exceptions to this mandate. Intra- and interoffice email correspondences to and from River Cats staff are subject to the fine, as are television graphics, print media references, and Facebook posts.

"Any questions or complaints regarding this new policy can be directed to the River Cats media relations department."

Using a brain to make a point:

GUEST COMMENTARY
from Edwin Garcia, Kaiser Permanente

Dr. Victor DeNoble, a former tobacco research scientist who became a whistleblower against his company – and the entire industry – spoke to hundreds of students in a series of school assemblies in West Sacramento earlier this month, explaining the dangers of smoking.

Among the attention-grabbing props he displayed were the frozen brains of a monkey, and also of a human, that he held in his glove-covered hand as he worked the multipurpose rooms showing what he learned long ago about the effect that the drug nicotine has on the brain.

DeNoble's presentations were part of an anti-smoking effort called "Don't Buy The Lie," which is sponsored by Kaiser Permanente in partnership with the West Sacramento-based Health Education Council.

He spoke at Bridgeway Island, Riverbank and Stonegate elementary schools.

In addition to presenting dozens of school assemblies each March in the Sacramento region, "Don't Buy The Lie" includes a poster contest for students in the 7th-through-12th grades who submit drawings and messages with an anti-smoking theme. The winners receive prizes and their artwork is displayed on billboards.

DeNoble tells a riveting story about how he was secretly hired by Philip Morris to create a safer cigarette that wouldn't lead to heart disease. But much of his time was spent researching something the company didn't authorize and later fired him for: he used laboratory rats to investigate the addictive nature of nicotine.

More than 10 years after he was fired, the federal government asked DeNoble to testify in Congress against the tobacco industry. His testimony and other evidence prompted major fines against the industry and significant reforms, including the banning of cigarette advertisements from billboards.

After the Bridgeway Island Elementary School assembly, Principal Grace Chin said the presentation will have a lasting effect on students because Dr. DeNoble is a scientist and his work lends credibility to his message.

March 21, 5:07 p.m.

A Citrus Avenue man reported being the victim of a "Nigerian scam," during which he paid somebody $2-3,000. (Editor's note: "Nigerian scams," often by email and often from Nigeria, tell the tale of the need to transfer a large sum of money and offer the victim a generous cut for his or her assistance – in return for certain fees or for bank account information.)

March 21, 8:07 p.m.

A Fillmore Place home was found burglarized. A female resident reported an Xbox game system was stolen. The point of entry was unknown, but a sliding glass door may have been left unlocked.

March 21, 9 p.m. (approximate)

A 6th Street market reported a "beer run" just occurred. Three males around 18 years old stole an 18-pack of Budweiser and took off toward California Street.

March 21, 9:35 p.m.

March 21, 1:20 p.m.

A man reported a burglary on Fourness Drive. Thieves took an iPad, laptop, Xbox, jewelry, camcorder and more.

March 21, 8:02 p.m.

Police responded to the report of a disorderly, intoxicated woman in front of a restaurant on the 3000-block of West Capitol. "During detention, (she) exposed her breast to an assisting officer." The woman had arrest warrants, and went to jail.

March 21, 5:37 p.m.

A caller from a Jefferson Blvd. apartment complex said there was a resident who had threatened someone with a gun two nights earlier and the man was known to keep the gun in his couch. Police learned there was a warrant for the 29-year old subject, and he was on searchable probation. The landlord gave permission for the apartment to be searched. Police found a loaded handgun in the couch and a meth pipe.

The man was arrested.

Free services at Yolo County Health Fair April 3

From Beth Gabor
County of Yolo

Every year in the United States, seven out of ten deaths are due to preventable chronic diseases, such as diabetes and heart disease. In fact, chronic disease accounts for 75% of national health care spending, yet only 3% of health care dollars go toward prevention. The good news is there are steps that can be taken to turn these statistics around. To find out how, the community is invited to attend the Public Health Wellness Fair on Wednesday, April 3, 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at the Yolo County Health Department, located at 137 N. Cottonwood Street in Woodland.

Yolo County's Public Health Wellness Fair is one of hundreds of National Public Health Week (April 1-7) events happening in communities nationwide. Free activities will include: Tdap immunizations; lead poisoning prevention demonstrations; car seat inspections; Health Check screenings (blood pressure, cholesterol, BMI), Sidewalk CPR; and information related to smoothie bike, nutrition, emergency preparedness, environmental health, WIC and breastfeeding peer counseling.

"The thee of this year's Public Health Week is on target – Public Health is Return on Investment: Save Lives, Save Money," said Yolo County Health Officer Constance Caldwell, MD., in a press release. "Preventing diseases before they start is critical to helping people live longer, healthier lives, while managing health-related costs. Many small preventive steps can add up to make a big difference in transforming a health care system focused on treatment to one that equally values prevention."

"Chronic diseases cause Americans to miss 2.5 billion days of work each year, resulting in lost productivity totaling more than $1 trillion," said Yolo County Board of Supervisors Chair Duane Chamberlain. "Strong public health systems are critical for sustaining and improving community health."

Yolo County's Public Health Wellness Fair is supported by Yolo County departments, Woodland Bike Campaign, Yolo County Children's Alliance, Woodland Catholic Healthcare West, Sacramento-Yolo Mosquito & Vector Control District, UC Davis Fire Department, Food Bank of Yolo County, CommuniCare Health Centers, First 5 Yolo, American Medical Response, Sexual Assault & Domestic Violence Center and RSVP-Yolo.

The idea of Go Figure is to arrive at the figures given at the bottom and right-hand columns of the diagram by following the arithmetic signs in the order they are given (that is, from left to right and top to bottom). Use only the numbers below the diagram to complete its blank squares and use each of the nine numbers only once.

Bill Murray in "Hyde Park on Hudson"

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Hyde Park on Hudson" (R) -- In 1939, President Franklin Roosevelt hosted the first visit by ruling English royalty. This movie peels open this intriguing bit of history and seeks to make it as bland and boring as possible. The story comes from the perspective of Daisy (Laura Linney), a distant cousin of FDR (Bill Murray) -- and apparently one of his girlfriends. Daisy is an unassuming American gal surrounded by power -- and she's utterly insufferable as a POV character.

I would say it's not anybody's fault that this movie is so lame. None of the characters are fully realized. Murray tries to bring FDR to life, but the script won't allow it. Something about the pacing left little time for interesting drama. In a film about history, culture clash and big personalities, they somehow forgot the personality.

"The Sorcerer and the White Snake" (PG-13) -- This Chinese fantasy-romance sheds a new light on human-demon relationships. Xu (Raymond Lam) is a humble herbalist who is saved from drowning by the gorgeous Susu (Eva Huang), and quickly falls in love. Too bad she's a snake demon in human form -- although she's a nice demon and her love for Xu is real. Their happy home is threatened by Fahai (Jet Li), a white-robed monk who sniffs out and banishes demons.

This is not a bone-crunching kung-fu-on-wires movie like American Li fans are used to seeing. While martial-arts and flight play a big role, it's more of a big-screen folk tale. The computer graphics are amazing, but maybe not put to the best use. The action and magic sequences are so overwhelming that it's hard to feel involved.

"Orchestra of Exiles" (NR) -- As Nazism took hold of Germany, renowned violinist Bronislaw Huberman began a courageous mission to get Jewish musicians away from their persecutors. This documentary tells the story of Beloved Irish author Maeve Binchy finished the manuscript for "A Week in Winter" days before she died in July after a brief illness. Her final novel, published posthumously, shows Binchy at the top of her writing game. Set in a small, fictional Irish coastal town where everyone knows each other, Binchy introduces us to a plucky, resourceful middle-aged woman named Chicky Ryan, who works tirelessly to fulfill her lifelong dream to buy the decaying Stone House mansion and build it into a holiday resort.

The Kitchen Diva

BY Angela Shelf Medearis

Broccoli Adds a Boost of Flavor

Although broccoli isn't one of former President George H.W. Bush's favorite vegetables, it's a popular choice for many Americans. The average person in the United States eats four and one-half pounds of broccoli a year. Broccoli is available year round, but it's best during the spring months and cooler weather. Broccoli is rich in fiber and might help reduce cholesterol and fight other diseases. It takes 3 to 3 1/2 cups of broccoli to equal the calcium in one cup of milk.

Broccoli was first grown wild about 2,500 years ago on the island of Cyprus and in other parts of the Mediterranean. Broccoli has been grown in America for about 200 years. The first commercially grown broccoli crop was harvested in New York. Broccoli was first planted in California the 1920s, and now 90 percent of the fresh broccoli sold in the U.S. is grown in California's Salinas Valley, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Broccoli has become one of the best-selling members of the Brassica genus family, which also includes cabbage, Brussels sprout, cauliflower and cruciferous vegetables. One of the most common types of broccoli sold in the U.S. is sprouting, or Italian green, broccoli, which has light-green stalks topped by umbrella-shaped clusters of purplish-green florets. It also is known as Calabrese, after the Italian province of Calabria, where it was first grown.

When buying broccoli look for firm, compact clusters of small flower buds. The bud clusters should be dark or sage green, or even green with a purplish tinge.

Broccoli adds vitamins, flavor and texture to my recipe for Broccoli Pasta Salad with Zesty Lemon Parsley Dressing. This salad is the perfect "make ahead" dish for a light lunch or as a side dish for a main course. Best of all, it tastes even better the next day.

BROCCOLI PASTA SALAD WITH ZESTY DRESSING

When prepping the broccoli, keep the stems and florets separate, as the stems need a little more time to cook.

2 teaspoons salt
12 ounces whole-wheat elbow or rotini pasta or shell pasta
1 1/2 pounds broccoli
1 cup (6 ounces) raisins
1 red bell pepper, stem and seed pod removed, diced
1/2 purple onion, minced
1/2 cup walnuts, toasted and chopped coarsely

Zesty Lemon Parsley Dressing

1 teaspoon lemon zest
4 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
3 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
3 tablespoons honey or agave syrup
2 teaspoons Dijon or honey mustard
2 garlic cloves, minced
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon crushed red pepper or chili powder
1/3 cup olive oil

1. In a large pot, bring 4 quarts of water to a rapid boil (covering the pot with a lid). Stir in salt and pasta. Cook, uncovered for 8 to 9 minutes, stirring as needed to prevent pasta from sticking.

2. Meanwhile, whisk together lemon zest, juice, chopped fresh parsley, honey or agave, mustard, garlic, 1/2 teaspoon salt, pepper and red pepper in a large bowl. Add the olive oil in a slow, steady stream, whisking constantly until smooth.

3. Using a slotted spoon, scoop (don't drain) the pasta from the boiling water--you'll need the boiling water to cook the broccoli. Add the pasta to the bowl of dressing. Toss to combine. Set aside.

4. Trim the florets off broccoli, cut into 1-inch pieces. Chop the tough end off of the stalks and discard. Halve stalks lengthwise and slice them, about 1/4 inch thick.

5. Bring pasta water back to a boil. Add broccoli stalks to the boiling water and cook for 1 to 2 minutes. You should be able to poke the tip of a knife into the stalk quite easily. Add florets to the pot and cook until slightly tender, about 1 minute.

6. Drain broccoli and place in ice water to cool. Drain again, transfer to salad spinner, and spin dry. If you don't have a salad spinner, lay the broccoli on paper towels or clean kitchen towels to dry for 5 minutes.

7. Mix the broccoli, raisins, red bell pepper, onions, walnuts and the remaining 1/2 teaspoon of salt with the pasta. Cover and chill for 1 hour before serving. You can make the salad up to six hours in advance. Makes 4 to 6 servings

For the first time in River City High School's history, two students have brought home the gold, winning the Sacramento Regional Science Fair competition in the "Psychology and Social Behavior" category.

Helaman Burdge and Camille Krahn competed with over 100 other projects overall spread across several categories and emerged victorious. Their project dealt with the effects of social peer pressure when viewing various images and video clips. Individual test subjects were placed in a group setting and exposed to videos and still images. "Planted" members of the group expressed various facial expressions with the goal of influencing the test subject.

Heart rate and facial expressions of the test subject were monitors and the results were recorded.

Winning the local competition qualifies them to go to Los Angeles for the two-day California State Science Fair held at the California Science Center on April 15th and 16th. There they will represent River City High and West Sacramento as they compete with over 1,000 participants from 400 schools throughout California.

A scholarship fund has been setup to help fund the trip. Visit www.gofundme.com/2coaok to donate.

RC tennis at top of Sierra Valley conference

From River City High School

A pair of hard-fought wins against their closest competitors has the River City High School Tennis Team alone at the top of the Sierra Valley Conference (SVC) standings. The Raiders defeated Vista del Lago 6 to 3 and Cosumnes Oaks 7 to 2 to improve to 6-0 in the SVC and 12-0 overall in 2013.

Five of the day's nine matches went the distance against Vista del Lago, and the host Raiders took four of those five contests to give the visitors their first loss this season. Vista del Lago earned quick wins in both boys singles matches, but RC got two girls doubles victories from Sarah Yang and Sonia Bola at #1 (7-5,6-4) and Nicole Melido and Julia Quenga at #2 (6-1,6-4) to even up the overall match.

In mixed doubles, Lina Vang and Muradan Chhay overcame a first set loss to win 6-7(4),6-2,(10-7). The squads split the boys doubles matches as RC's Michael Lee and Matthew Tagupa lost 4-6,7-6(5),(5-10) at #1 while Amran Khan and Akshay Prabhakar won 1-6,6-3,(10-8) at #2.

With RC up 4 to 3 overall, it came down to two marathon girls singles matches and both Cindy Oseguera and Lily He battled for third-set Raider victories. Oseguera won 6-3,4-6,7-6(4) at #1 and He won 7-5,4-6,6-3 at #2.

Two days later, River City welcomed Cosumnes Oaks to West Sacramento and emerged with another win. Oseguera and He breezed through their girls singles matches this time, dropping only four games combined. And while the Raiders' boys singles players struggled again, the hosts swept all five doubles contests. In girls doubles, Yang and Bola won 6-1,6-3 at #1 and Melido and Quenga were perfect, 6-0,6-0 at #2. Vang and Chhay triumphed 6-1,6-3 in mixed. The day's closest contests resulted in wins for Lee and Tagupa 5-7,6-2,(10-3) at #1 boys doubles and for Khan and Prabhakar 6-3,5-7,(12-10) at #2.

RC now has a break from SVC competition but has tough matches against Marysville of the Golden Empire League and Placer of the Pioneer Valley League scheduled for this week. The next SVC match for the Raiders will be at Union Mine on Tuesday, April 2nd.

To mark the resort's opening, Chicky advertises a special deal -- a week in winter on the west coast of Ireland. The first group of guests starts to arrive, and we learn all of them have different reasons for staying there. They include:

An American movie star who misses a connecting flight and decides to take a brief holiday in Ireland. He wrongfully assumes he is incognito since his fellow guests don't make a huge fuss over him;

A retired schoolteacher who exudes negativity with each breath she takes, and criticizes everything and everyone she encounters;

A young Swede, who must decide whether to head the family business or follow his heart;

A mother and would-be daughter-in-law who have been forced into taking a vacation together, with all the tension and uneasiness that implies;

A married couple, both doctors, who find themselves at a spiritual and professional crossroads, having witnessed far too much sickness and death.

Binchy writes beautifully about the importance of community and of people being restored to life, especially after their dreams and plans fail or when their worries and fears consume them. "A Week in Winter" is a bittersweet read for Binchy fans, many of whom will savor her final book and lament all of her untold stories. A literary treasure in the truest sense, Ms. Binchy will be missed.

how Huberman formed the Palestine Philharmonic orchestra by helping musicians and their families leave Germany, saving the lives of about 1,000 people along the way. It's not the most gripping film, but it's an interesting story brought to life with intricate detail.

"In Another Country" (NR) -- In a small beach town in South Korea, three strikingly similar stories take place, though none of them seem to conclude. Isabelle Huppert plays three different characters, all of them named Anne. The three Anne's have different personalities, yet seem to experience similar conversations, situations and people. This English-language creation by Korean director Sang-soo Hong completely ignores conventional storytelling. It's just odd and engaging enough to keep you watching, if you're feeling up for something just a little different.

Letters to the Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: An error in the layout of last week's News-Ledger took out parts of two "letters to the editor." We regret the error.

The two letters appear again below:

School board mistake

Don't let our YCCA (Yolo County Children's Alliance) West Sacramento Family Resource Center leave the Broderick neighborhood of West Sacramento. (The organization has been providing social services to the public at the former Bryte Elementary School, which is now used for a high school program).

The "Memorandum of Understanding" between the YCCA and the school district was brought up to the school board and there was a vote last week, which ended with this wonderful group being asked to leave in 30 days and not help the multitude of families in the area with food, clothing, maintain their health insurance, assistance with taxes, diapers and visiting services, et. for free because of two people.

What if it was their family or friends that they cut off from help to be told, sorry, no food, no clothes... go away we can't help you anymore.

Shame on you!

The Board needs this vote rescinded and a new vote brought up to continue the MOU so that donations can continue to be received to help these families.

YCCA received a United Way Grant for a full time Reading Specialist to be located at Westfield Elementary School, the target is Kindergarten – 3rd Grade. This will now be gone as well as families coming to the school to received underwear, toothbrushes, shoes, etc. They also received a Kaiser HEAL Grant to help create a park at Westfield Village school and a walking trail, this will be gone.

I live and work here in West Sacramento I donate to YCCA and so does the company I work for.

Shame on you who voted to stop this wonderful program.

JUDY BROSI-CHRZANOWSKI
West Sacramento

Editor's note: On the News-Ledger's Facebook page, school board member Adam Menke commented last week that the school district is trying to work out some remaining concerns about YCCA's use of the campus. He said in part:

"We are looking to bring forward a new MOU (Memorandum of Understanding) that ensures the safety of our student and also allows for YCCA to continue to provide services to the community from the Bryte location as it does now. There is currently an MOU in place with YCCA and YCCA was at no time given a 30 day notice to evict and I'm confident that they will never receive that notice."

The proposed agreement between the school district and YCCA is scheduled to be on the agenda again at this Thursday's school board meeting.

Thanks!

The Yolo County Women's History Month Committee would like to thank everyone who attended and supported their 26th annual Women's History Month luncheon that took place on Thursday, March 7, at the Woodland Community & Senior Center. The luncheon was a sold out fundraiser, benefiting the public libraries in Yolo County. Approximately 200 guests attended the event. The committee would like to thank Linda P.B. Katehi, Chancellor of the University of California, Davis, the 2013 speaker for the luncheon, for her participation in the event. On behalf of the committee, Dotty Pritchard, President of the Yolo County Women's History Month Committee, presented a check from the proceeds of the luncheon to representatives of the Yolo County and Woodland Public Libraries for the purchase of women's history materials.

The committee would also like to thank the many sponsors who made the luncheon possible. In particular, the committee greatly appreciates the generous contributions of the following sponsors: UC, Davis, Clark Pacific, Kevin Haarberg, Davis Odd Fellows, Pam Marrone, Marrone Bio Innovations, Freddie Oakley, Yolo County Clerk, Tracie Olson, Yolo County Public Defender, Teichert, and State Senator Lois Wolk. The committee must also acknowledge the support of the City of Woodland, L & S Printing, and Charles McDonald who volunteered to take photographs at the luncheon. A big thank you to Strelitzia Flower Company that provided the lovely floral arrangements for the tables and bouquets. The committee greatly appreciated the outstanding job the Anderson Family Catering & BBQ of Winters did for the luncheon.

Thank you to the Yolo County Board of Supervisors and Woodland Joint Unified School District Board of Trustees for adopting Proclamations recognizing 2013 "Yolo County Women's History Month."

Without all the help from the community, individuals, sponsors and businesses, the luncheon would not have been such a success. Year after year, they have continued to show their endorsement for the luncheon, making it a huge success. Thank you to everyone who helped with the luncheon.
